ALL OVER THE WORLD IN A WEEK.

A rich vein of silver ore has been discovered in Spencer county, Indiana, and excitement is at fever heat.

James Tyson, aged sixty, and Miss Edith Johns, nineteen years of age, were married at Baltimore last week.

Fannie Miller was last week granted a divorce from Charles Miller, at Madison, Ind., and four hours after married the Slater.

Several cans containing $2-000 worth of stolen watches and jewelry, were found hidden in the woods near Valley Falls, West Virginia.

A resolution asking that soldiers' bounties be equalized has been adopted by the Ohio Legislature and forwarded to Congress for its concurrence.

It is reported from Milbank, Dakota, that there is not a pound of silver in the hands of dealers, coal is scarce and not much prospect for a supply of either.

C. T. Wood, who was the first child born in Hopkinsville, Ky., was buried last week in the city cemetery. He was ninety years of age. His father sold the first town lots in Hopkinsville.

The Mayor of Lexington has received from the U. S. Mail, at a ship's room, an account of the loud performances which have been recently given there. It was at this place young Metcalf was killed.

It is estimated that in Texas 20,000 sheep perished in the recent blizzard.
One flock of 800 laid down in a drizzling rain, the temperature fell and the flock froze as they lay. The sheep mortality will result in a short wool crop.

The Mississippi Legislature has passed a bill pensioning former Confederate soldiers who are now unable to support themselves, extending the same benefits to the colored servants who attended them in the field and who are in like condition.

Thos. S. Gardner, proprietor of the Chicago Farm Journal, formerly a resident of Logan county, Ky., was Friday fined $500 in the United States District Court at Chicago, for a fraudulent use of the mails in conducting a lottery and gift enterprise.

The United States Supreme Court has decided adversely on the case of Brooks, alias Maxwell, the St. Louis trunk murderer. It denies the writ of error on the ground of want of jurisdiction. This is Brooks' last hope, and it is now believed that he must pay the death penalty for the murder of Praeler.

A breach of promise suit has been filed in the Mason (Ky.) circuit court.
The prosecuting witness is Mrs. Josie Wood, and the defendant S. H. Poe, a photographer car man, now at Manchester. O. Mrs. Wood is a widow and thirty years old, and Poe is a married man, having a wife living. Mrs.
Wood sues for $5,000 damages. A batch of love letters are filed in the case.

Anson Hatfield, the leader of the West Virginia outlaws making war on the McCoy's, of Pike county, has been arrested and placed in jail at Pikeville.
There are now ten of the Hatfields in jail, and indictments are pending against all of them. It is probable that Governor Buckner has had some correspondence with the Governor of West Virginia on the subject of the vendetta.

An inhuman father at Paulding, Ohio, conceived a dislike to his seven-year old child, and tried to torture it to death. He first broke an arm, then a leg, then the other arm, when the mother, who had kept quiet through fear, finally called in a surgeon. One arm was amputated and the child died in a few weeks. The brute has just been tried and found guilty of manslaughter! The people of the place are indignant, and threaten to lynch the fiend.

Court of Appeals has affirmed the case of Dick Forman, convicted of killing Jerry Cravens in this city, January 1, 1885, and sentenced to the penitentiary for twenty-one years. On the first trial Forman was sentenced for fourteen years, but an appeal was taken and the case was reversed, and the second trial resulted as above stated. It will be remembered Forman was deprived of his life when he killed Cravens in an attempt to arrest him.—Mt. Sterling Gazette.

The wife of the Rev. Wesley Meeks, the man who was taken out of his house at St. Omar, Ind., and severely whipped by a mob about a week since for laziness, has evidently a good deal more pluck than he has, for she has armed herself and hung on the outside of her house a placard signed by herself, in which she declares that her husband shall not do a lick of work before next spring, and that if he "Knights of the Switch" pay her another visit they will meet with a warm reception.

A Saturday special to Louisville Courier-Journal from Mt. Vernon, Ky., says: Through private sources intelligence reached here today that Gen. Duffield of United States surveying party, now in Bell county, were hourly expecting trouble with citizens there. Owing to the survey being made strong feeling exists against the party, but nothing serious resulted until a few days since, when the party were waited upon in their secluded camp by a number of armed men, who ordered them off their land. The order was not obeyed, but Duffield immediately doubled the guards at night and continued work. This morning news reached here that the beligerent citizens had surrounded the camp, armed with needle guns, and determined to dispose of the surveyors.

Gen. Duffield was persistent in refusing to sue to the demands made upon him and the conflict is hourly expected. Owing to the remoteness of the scene and a desire upon the part of residents to suppress the facts, little information can be gained, yet enough is known to create alarm for the safety of Duffield's party, as the beligerents have the advantage in numbers, and otherwise seem determined to enforce their demands. On the other hand, Duffield is equally determined to hold his ground, and as he has good fighting men with him, yet enough causes it will be a bitter one. Rumors are rife here that shots have been exchanged, but this can not be traced to definite sources.
Five men from this county are with the party and much anxiety is felt for their safety.
Dickson, of this place, sends word that the party had been attacked at Camp Shook, and several shots exchanged, but no one hurt.
Gen. Duffield's party is running out some old land grants under an order from the United States Court.

E. P. Macy, a prominent merchant of Golden City, Arkansas, was foully murdered Friday by Oscar Coulter, who rode up to Macy's store and shot him to death.
About seven years ago Coulter was a fugitive from Walker county, Georgia, where he was wanted for burning a school house.
Macy, learning that a reward was offered for him arrested him. At the time, he swore he would kill Macy. He was convicted and sent to the penitentiary, but succeeded in gaining his freedom before the expiration of his time. Friday morning he committed the murder and made his escape, but officers went in pursuit and will likely arrest or kill him. The murderer is nearly seven feet high.

An amusing decision was recently rendered by the Webster county court of Georgia. Elijah Carnes was selling out for the purpose of moving to Texas, and among his stock was a fine herd of cattle.
Mr. Carnes owed considerable to the merchants in Preston, and one of them attached the cattle. Mrs. Carnes appeared as claimant of the herd, and stated that while Mr. Carnes was courting her he was not able to present her with an engagement ring, and in lieu thereof he presented her with a yearling heifer. This engagement offering grew and multiplied, and the result is the herd of cattle, which is the bone of contention. The Judge awarded the cattle to the lady.

There resides at Coatsville, a small village in Hendricks county, Indiana, a gentleman named Jacob Bundy, who is somewhat of a curiosity, being quite centric in his habits and manner of living. He has been married three times, is eighty-nine years old, a Democrat, and the father of forty-five children—forty-three sons and two daughters. The oldest child is sixty-five and the youngest two years, and it is said all are living. It is thought that another individual lives who has such a record as Mr. Bundy. The old gentleman is still quite spry for one of his years, and gets about with seemingly as much ease as his oldest child.

There has been a demand for a fractional currency that would take the place of the old "shin-plasters," for convenience in making and receiving Postal notes, which were expected to meet this demand, are not as popular as expected, and there is a sentiment in the Banking and Currency Committee of Congress that favors an issue of this kind of fractional currency.
It is thought that a bill will be reported to the House providing for an issue of 100,000, 000 of this currency, which is likely to pass.

Dread, alias Jas. McKnight, who murdered Dr. Cummings, Thursday of last week, in the Indian Territory, because he feared Cummings would inform on him for a crime committed some time ago, was pursued by a posse. Being hard pressed, McKnight turned on them, and shot and killed two of the posse before he was brought down. His dead body was taken into Gainesville, Texas.

A special term of the Fayette circuit court began Monday for try Lucetta Munday for the alleged poisoning of her husband in 1882. This case has already cost the State thousands of dollars; two changes of venue have been granted already.

Pulaski county shipped this season about $100,000 worth of mules.

A New York syndicate has recently had a representative prospecting for lead ore in Scott county.

Spoker Carlisle, accompanied by his wife and a lady friend, are recuperating at Fort Monroe.

A farmer in Vermont made a net profit of $40.50 from the produce of a single turkey hen during the present season.

Associated Press dispatches state that the heaviest snowstorms for years prevailed in New Hampshire, Maine and Vermont last week.

A Springfield, Ohio, preacher is named Summerhell. If he don't make it pretty hot for his congregation, then there's nothing in a name.

The value of the live stock in the United States is $1,275,000,190, which is more than the combined value of the stock of all other countries.

The race stable of J. B. Haggin won last year $101,722. His largest winner was Firenze, bay filly three years old, by Glencoe, dam Florida, who won $24,880.

Bowling Green and two other negroes were arrested, tried and bound over to the Boyle circuit court for the murder of Wm. Whitecotton, at Danville, Ky.

Owen Davis, a clerk in the Adams Express office at Paris, Ky., eloped with Miss Mary Alexander, a daughter of Charles Alexander, and were married Friday.

J. R. Richardson was Friday incarcerated in the Kansas penitentiary for three years for attempted wife murder, and along with him was his wife, sent up for a year and a half for perjury in trying to shield her husband.

Col. Bennett H. Young purchased a pair of turkeys from near Oregon, Woodford county, and shipped them to Mr.
Boyd, of Philadelphia. The gobblers weigh ed forty-four and the hen twenty-four pounds making the weight of the pair sixty-eight pounds.

A Sunday special to the Cincinnati Enquirer from Lexington, Ky., says: The Lexington Company of State Guards has been under arms all day, and awaiting orders from Frankfort to go to Pike county to assist the authorities to quell the Hatfield McCoy feud. Adjutant-General Hill will go up to that county tonight.

A Washington man, whose wife is away on a visit, wrote to her the other day, and added this stanza, which he meant in good spirit, but which is likely to raise a row.

If absence makes the heart grow fonder,
And distance makes the dear one dear,
I pray thee, do not cease to wander,
And stay away at least a year.

An Australian visited this State last fall and purchased some stock.
Since he returned home he has written to Joseph McBowell, of Fayette county, to purchase $10,000 worth of bumble bees to assist in growing clover in that country. The Frankfort Capital says if he will take them "in the field," as corn is sometimes sold, that he can be supplied.

Pike county, Ky., wants Governor Buckner to send troops there to prevent the Hatfields, of West Virginia, from murdering all the McCoy's they can find, while Logan county, W. Va., wants Governor Buckner to order out a battalion to guard the Hatfields from utter extermination by the McCoy's. In the meantime, good and peaceable people everywhere are wondering why the Sheriff's of these two counties are not doing their duty by arresting these brawlers, who are doing so much to injure their respective States.

The United States Consul at Guaymas, Mexico, has informed the State Department that four American prospectors in the District of Montezuma, in the Sierra Madre Mountains, were attacked on or about the 25th ult. by a band of Apache Indians, and that two of the Americans, J. Offer and S. W. Jacobs, were killed. The other two escaped without injury. The attacking party consisted of four Indians and a white man.
The troops of that section started in pursuit immediately on receipt of this information, but did not kill or capture any of the Indians.

An Associated Press report states that the Atokian, Topock and Santa Fe road intends purchasing 100,000 bushels of seed wheat and sending it out into the western counties of Kansas, more especially into the southwestern part of the State, where the farmers have suffered the most from last year's failure of crops. The company will take the role of the farmers for the purchase price, due in one year at three per cent, and will charge nothing for transportation. It is thought the Missouri Pacific will take the same. In 1880 the same scheme was tried, and found to be reasonably successful.

In the Kentucky Legislature

Friday, a bill incorporating a building and loan association in Lexington was called up, and during the discussion of it Mr. Needham thought Mr. Mulligan had reflected on his character very unjustly and in the same indirect manner reflected on Mr. Mulligan's character. Mr. Mulligan arose to reply and he and Needham indulged in some very sarcastic cross firing and brought the House up to the very highest pitch of excitement.
Needham said that Mulligan had misunderstood him and that if he (Mulligan) would withdraw his remarks he (Needham) would withdraw his. Mulligan said, "Shake, old fellow," and they shook hands over what looked like, at one time, would be a bloody chasm, and everybody went home in a good humor without the bill being passed.

In the Senate the following bills were passed: Bill incorporating the Louisville, Harlanburg and Western Railway Company. Bill making May 30th in each year a legal holiday. Bill incorporating the Mayfield and Laysville Gravel Company in Graves county.
Bill authorizing the Secretary of State to furnish Wolfe county with Court of Appeals reports and other books. Bill amending section 131, Civil Code, providing that plaintiffs in certain suits involving joint obligations shall not be put out of court on account of failure to show all the parties to the defense to be properly before the court.
Bill fixing the salary of the Judges of the Court of Appeals at $5,000 per annum, payable every month. The resolution protesting against the Blair Education bill by the United States Congress was passed by a vote of 21 to 8. The bill to appropriate $50,000 to defray the expenses of making a Kentucky exhibit at the Louisville and Cincinnati Expositions was called up, but was laid over for further discussion. The Governor reported that he had appointed E. E. Pearce Mayor of Mayfield, as provided by the charter of said city, and the appointment was confirmed. The resolutions looking to the improvement of the Kentucky River by the General Government, and requesting Kentucky's Senators and Representatives in Congress to urge the completion of works already begun on that river, were taken up, and, on motion of Mr. McKee, unanimously adopted. Mr. Pieratt had leave to report a bill amending an act providing for the Breathitt county court to build a court house, and provide payment therefor. Passed.

About $200 worth of lumber belonging to the First Baptist church was burned on the 11th inst. The lumber was being dried at the time and suddenly burst into flames and burned so rapidly that none of it could be saved. The lumber was to have been used in the construction of a church in the new part of the town. The loss is a severe one to the congregation.
Major Warren with a corps of pole cutters

From the Courier-Journal of Tuesday, we clip the very latest about the Hatfield-McCoy war, and hope the news may be correct. That paper says: News came all the way from Pike, by the way of Charleston, W. Va., that the Hatfields and McCoy's have disbanded their respective forces and gone back to the peaceful pursuit of the mountaineer, who have no desire to draw head on a fancied foe. Gov. Wilson has ordered his army to disperse and we may profitably remark that while-tinged peace gets in her work. Let the mountaineers maintain it, and, in the classic language of Mr. Dana, we may be happy yet.

At Battle Creek, Mich., the Adventists are in a state of great religious excitement. They believe that the final consummation of all earthly matters is close at hand, and have discarded all their Jewelry. Recently at a meeting $5,000 was turned into the church in cash and $2,000 in jewelry. The latter will be sold to the ungodly and the money given to the establishing of missions in Switzerland, Norway, England, South Africa and Australia.

The City Council of Knoxville, Tenn., six of the nine members being Democrats, Friday elected Rev. J. C. Lawrence, a colored man, to fill the unexpired term of Mayor-elect Condon on the Board of Education. Lawrence is a Republican, and his appointment was made as a token of respect to the colored people, who voted Democratic in the recent municipal election.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET

FOR SUNDAY—G. C. HANKS.
Election Monday, August 18, 1888.

Only a few months ago the Courier-Journal, among other newspapers in the favored section of the State, raised a racket about the cost of conveying convicts from Whitesburg to Frankfort. At the time we showed our distinguished contemporary that it was figuring favorably for its own locality and dealing foully with the mountains. Now comes the Auditor's Report, which shows that Jefferson county, situated only fifty-six miles from Frankfort, took more from the State treasury to pay guard claims than was drawn for the same purpose for all of the nine counties composing the Nineteenth judicial district. The table will be interesting reading to all who have been in the habit of reading in the Louisville papers of the "Lawlessness in the Mountains." This table gives the amount paid in the State treasury for guard claims in the Nineteenth district, and shows how the money was distributed:

Breathitt.....	1885-6.	1886-7.
Clay.....	$19.00	$49.90
Estill.....	141.65
Knott.....	824.60	499.45
Lee.....	41.70
Letcher.....	1,326.80	753.85
Perry.....	181.30	116.70
Powell.....	7.60
Wolfe.....	189.50	35.50

Totals..... $2,752.15 $1,425.25

These figures represent the cost for guards called into service from July 1st, 1885, to June 30th, 1887, and the following table shows the amount paid to Jefferson county for same service and same time:

Jefferson.....	1885-6.	1886-7.
	$3,412.43	$2,911.80
		3,412.43

Total for two years..... $6,324.23
Now, if it cost the State $6,324.23 to guard Jefferson county convicts to the penitentiary, located only fifty-six miles away, we naturally conclude that there was an all-fired lot of 'em, or else that being of the genteel sort, they were put through in palace coaches and wine and dined while en route! The cost for guarding the convicts from the Nineteenth district, nine counties, mind you, of an average distance of 120 miles from the penitentiary—for the same time was only $4,177.40, which shows that the State paid $2,146.83 more to house the convicts of a single county than it did our nine counties. When it is remembered that a railroad, over which one man could take fifty prisoners, runs from Louisville to Frankfort, the robbery spoken of by our distinguished contemporary is apparent, but the robbers are not of this section. Yes, we echo the exclamation of the Courier-Journal—"The State is being robbed!"—but it reminds us of the story of the thief yelling, "Stop, thief," and the C.-J., for its people, seems to have assumed the title role.

Robbed! Well, yes, and only our limited knowledge of anseris prevents a description of the smile that contorts our risibles, no other language being adequate!

The Kentucky Legislature should buy a circus canvass and travel over the State that the people may see its antics. One committee last week reported favorably a bill to appropriate $36,000 for the Feeble-minded Institute, maintained for the idios of parents too proud to care for their offspring, while another gang is doing all it can to make the counties maintain their own paupers, the latter applying to children cared for in their own families—by their own parents.

Query—Is a blue-glass idiot superior in any respect to a mountain idiot, and is there any reason why the former should cost the State $300 a year while $75 is denied to the latter for its maintenance?

A gentleman, who is thoroughly acquainted with iron ore, was in our office a few days since, and we exhibited to him a piece of ore taken from the farm of Mr. J. C. SWANGO, just across Red River from our town. He at once exclaimed "Why, there is at least sixty per cent. of pure iron in that," and added that it was "as rich as could be found in Kentucky." There is an abundance of the same ore found "all around here," and if capitalists would take hold, we could soon create a boom. Who will be the first to start?

Peace on Earth

Awaits that countless army of myrtles, whose ranks are constantly recruited from the victims of nervousness and nervous disease. The price of the boon is a systematic course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the finest and most genial of tonic nervines, pursued with reasonable persistence. Easier, pleasanter and safer this than to swash the victim's liver department with pseudo-tonics, alcoholic or the reverse, beef extracts, nerve foods, narcotics, sedatives and poisons in disguise. "Tired Nature's sweet restorer, balmy sleep," is the providential recuperant of weak nerves, and this glorious franchise being usually the consequence of sound digestion and increased vigor, the great stomachic which insures both is productive also of repose at the required time. Not unrefreshed awakens the individual who uses it, but vigorous, clear headed and tranquil. Use the Bitters also in fever and ague, rheumatism, kidney troubles, constipation and biliousness.

Mr. Editor, If it is allowable I will answer your question in THE HAZEL GREEN, Jan. 20th, "Who is this wonderful prophet?" I refer you to St. Mark xiv chap., 68, 72 verse, St. Luke xxii chap., 60, 62 verse, St. John xviii chap., 27 verse. In fact, he is one above all others whom we would not hear of a cold morning, unless we are sick—mighty sick—then we could eat nothing but a wretched ginger cake.

The following persons are on the sick list: Mollie Wingo, Willie John, Mrs. Martha Scott, Mrs. Fannie Nixon, Aunt Polly Repass, Mrs. M. D. L. Smith and daughter Lela, and Stanley Grover. R. T. Cecil and wife were visiting at Steelesburg Saturday and Sunday, the guests of J. Marion McGuire and wife. Miss Willetha Young returned to her home in Sinking Valley last Monday in company with her brother-in-law. Circuit court at Jeffersonville this week. Quite a crowd from this place is in attendance.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cecil, of near Tazewell C. H., is the guest of her daughter Mrs. T. C. Repass.

Cure Them A Chance!

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from there.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs can not half do their work. And what they do, they can not do well. Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any drugist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you, you may depend upon this for certain.

THE HERALD and the Weekly Cincinnati Enquirer, one year for only $2.00. It strikes us that this is the best combination yet made, and if it hits you the same way, send us $2.00 in cash and you will get both papers for twelve months. If

D. LANCELL'S ASTHMA AND CATARRH REMEDY.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.
Having struggled 20 years between life and death with ASTHMA or PHTHISIS, created by eminent physicians and receiving no benefit, I was compelled during the last 5 years of my illness to sit on my chair day and night, gasping for breath. My sufferings were beyond description. In despair I experimented on myself by compounding roots and inhaling the medicine thus obtained. I fortunately discovered this WONDERFUL CURE FOR ASTHMA AND CATARRH, warranted to relieve the most stubborn case of ASTHMA IN FIVE MINUTES, so that the patient can lie down to rest and sleep comfortably. Please read the following condensed extracts from unsolicited testimonials, all of recent date:
"Oliver V. H. Holmes, San Jose, Cal., writes: 'I find the Remedy all and even more than represented. I receive instantaneous relief.'

A Young Wife Said to her Husband,

"My dear, I dreamed last night that you were an Angel. What is that a sign of?"

"A foul stomach," was his unpoetic answer. People who have no such pleasant night visions, and awake feeling as though they had had no rest—nerves all unstrung, wondering "What on earth is the matter with me," would better take some simple treatment in TIME. Persons will neglect themselves and put off treatment until their health is gone.

What would you think of the authorities of a great city with its miles of sewerage to take away the filthy accumulations of streets and alleys allowing the sewerage to "choke up" and spread contagion and poisonous gases from decaying matter to blight that city by disease? Yet your course is just as UNWISSE. The human body is well provided with all that is necessary to carrying off the "unclean," and you allow it accumulate and decompose, bringing all manner of ills to the flesh. An old Chinese proverb is, "Keep your feet warm, your head cool and your bowels open." Make a memorandum of this and try it, and if you don't keep well there is no truth in the world.

READING FOR CHILDREN

What Should Be the Books to Amuse Boys and Girls.

In the rearing of their children, no question perplexes the conscientious parent more than the choice of books—no matter whether they be story books or picture books. No hard-and-fast rule can be laid down for their guidance. No list of books, however worthy, can prove of the least avail. Experience is the only safe guide. Parents study the composition of a particular meat intended for the baby's stomach; but they seldom devote more than a passing thought to the likes or dislikes of the baby mind. Readers of biography are frequently reminded of the effect which a certain piece of literature exercised upon the mental development of the subject of a memoir. Nothing seems more certain than that if the mother and father were to watch the feelings aroused in a child by the different sorts of books first placed in his hands, they would be able to give it literature of a kind which would help to mold his mind into a grand whole and give strength to its weaker parts. Thus they ought to be able to counteract a disposition to sentimentality or pessimism by vigorous and optimistic narrative; optimism or feverish nervous energy might find healthy qualification in stories of a mildly philosophic character. The emotions of which a child is capable are so ingeniously evinced that nothing ought to be easier than for parents to determine the sort of fiction likely to be most useful. Let a child read stories of whatever character it likes. If experience shows that a particular kind of fiction is calculated to do harm, do not fly to its antithesis for a remedy. Compromise the matter by giving the little one a story similar in subject matter, but so modified in tone as to prove innocuous. Parents may take it for certain that if they adopt proper means at the outset they will deprive reading of the great danger that it possesses for the young. Start the child on the road of honor and truth and prepare his mind for the inception and comprehension of sound principles. That is what is necessary to do in these days of high pressure and sensationalism. The period of adolescence has its risks, but these risks will be small or great in proportion as their source is wisely or unwisely dealt with.—Edward Salmon, in Nineteenth Century.

BISMARCK AT HOME.

Interesting Details of the Family Life of Germany's Chancellor.

A German contemporary publishes some interesting details of the daily life of Prince Bismarck. Every body knows, says our contemporary, that the Prince has been going up before noon, unless he has to attend an important parliamentary meeting. But it must be remembered that he only goes to bed after working till two a. m. every night. In the Chancellor's bedroom a light is kept burning all the night, numbers of messages, often requiring his personal attention, being brought in during the night. In consideration of the late hours kept by the Prince, supper is served late in the evening and seldom finished before midnight. Besides the Prince, Bismarck, Count and Countess Ranzen, partake of almost every evening meal. The dinner at the palace at 10:45 p. m., when a second-class cab always takes them home. Bismarck's birthday is always a great feast and holiday for the servants of the house. In the kitchen a barrel of wine is provided by Princess Bismarck, two barrels are in attendance and the servants' families appear on the scene. The Prince comes down, talks with the guests and distributes sweets among the children. The pleasant relations between master and servant are also evident from the fact that the Princess always gives six Easter eggs to each of the servants. The domestic police of the Prince consists of a sergeant and eight constables. If the Prince is away from home, four constables go with him and four remain at the house, and all of them are entitled to arrest any suspicious person, be it at Berlin, at Friedrichshagen, or at Varsin. It was at Varsin where Bismarck's large dog Sultan was poisoned. The Princess declared at the time that she would make provision for life for any one who could point out the poisoner. Sultan was more intelligent than Tyros, but Tyros is more faithful of the two, and will take food out of the hands of any member of Prince Bismarck's family, but never from a servant, as one of the footmen had learned to his regret. It is well known that at Berlin the Chancellor is rarely seen, and only sends out the household of the Von Scrape have the privilege of seeing him sometimes walking in his grounds.—Pitt Mail Gazette.

The tonnage moved by all the railroads in 1896 equaled 493,000,000 tons; it is estimated that this year will equal 545,000,000 tons, a comparative increase of 63,000,000.

PURCHASING A HORSE.

An Afternoon Stroll Through the Sale Stables at New Orleans.

At one time New Orleans was the principal mart of trade in the South and West, and was a first-class city for the live business. The traffic in horses is still good here, but the live business is doing nothing comparatively in the way of hiring, either riding or buggy horses. They claim that this is due to the lack of drives in and about the city, owing, they say, to years of neglect of the public highways, which become, in many instances, quagmires after the least rain. The streets are all hills and hollows, rough thoroughfares, hard on the buggies and drivers—all from need of repairs.

Various classes of horses come here from different portions of the country. The Texas ponies are shipped here by cutthroat, reined, and placed in the pens. The majority are unbroken, and sell from $25 to $75, according to size and appearance.

The harness, draft, saddle and roadster horses come from Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri, Illinois, Wisconsin and the other Western States. The dealers here, however, generally buy their supply of the different grades of animals in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Lexington and Louisville, where the dealers there collect their stocks from their respective sections from the breeders.

The breeders here buy the better class of draft-horses, the large, heavy ones, weighing from 1,200 to 1,500 pounds.

The fire companies also desire heavy animals, but active ones, with quick movements, whose build does not make them too clumsy. The Southern Express Company is another institution that requires a good grade of business horses, running from 1,000 to 1,200 pounds. The retail grocers use for their delivery wagons horses standing 15 and 16 hands and weighing from 900 to 1,200 pounds.

The saddle-horse is generally sold to gentlemen of means, whose exercise is taken in the open air on the back of a spirited and fancy steed. Such a purchaser is usually particular in making his selection, and is liable to sit down and discuss with the seller the style, gait and merits of the prospective purchase.

He is invariably given a trial of the horse, which is first ridden up and down the street for his inspection, and then turned over to himself to ride to see that it suits him. The favorite colors are bay, chestnut, brown and black.

The roadster or buggy-horse is bought by the man who enjoys an afternoon spin along the boulevards and public driveways. Such horses are valued for their soundness of speed, style and gentleness in harness. A good roadster should be able to go in four minutes, docile, not afraid of steam cars, dummies, or engines, and should be thoroughly broken.

Before the bargain is completed one of the stable-boys takes the horse out, which is well groomed, and should hold his head well up, presenting the required type of roadster, and trots him along the block so as to show all his points to the purchaser, who by this means is able to judge of the cut and carriage of the animal.

A great many buyers depend altogether on the word of the seller as to the age of the horse, but others insist on an examination of the mouth, closely scanning the teeth for the indication of the horse's age. After they have finished their inspection they know as little as they did before, because if the dealer is a trickster, he has already "chisped" the animal's mouth. That is, having an aged trotter, pacer, or saddle-horse for sale, he has taken the precaution to file his teeth and put in the black spots by burning them with a red-hot iron. As a horse grows older his teeth become loose, the gums shrink away and the black dots disappear. This being the case, the dealer can make his horse show up almost any age that he wishes, even to putting in the notch in the side jaw teeth, that indicates the period of five years old. So the purchaser, however, has an opinion he has of his own smartness and knowledge, is in reality as sure in the hands of an experienced horseman.

In selling a buggy or carriage horse the vendor generally takes the foresight to go with the purchaser and hold the reins for the horse may have some delicate, he conceals best to hide. For instance, the horse may show all right, but cut up when backed. In that case he never attempts to back him. If he shies at dummies and flying paper, he avoids them in his route. Whatever trick he has he is careful to keep out of sight, letting the purchaser find it out afterwards. The buying of a horse, therefore, settles itself down to trading with a responsible man, and with the dealer himself, having nothing to do with go-be-tweens, such as brokers and others, who hang round stables waiting to catch the eye of the purchaser in order to secure a commission.—*N. EFFECT OF CITY LIFE.

The General Physical Deterioration of Town Populations.

It is generally recognized that the effect of town life upon the physique is not beneficial, and as the population of boroughs has now exceeded that of the country, the fact becomes one worthy of our attention. The rapid increase of large towns at the present time adds to the importance of the subject and deepens its gravity. Of old there were but few large towns in our modern sense of a "large" town; but Luzon, the great French authority on "scrofula," noted how the population of Paris deteriorated, and how scrofulous were the third generations of persons who came in from the country perfectly healthy. Other observers have noticed the bad effect of town life elsewhere. And the recent observations of Mr. James Cantile have demonstrated the rapidity of a pure-bred Cockney of the fourth generation. Of old the B-ton lived in his castle, while the populace lived around in villages of limited size. For men of all conditions of life the one thing to be coveted above all others was physical strength. For work, for war, for games, which were regarded as manly war, bodily strength was essential. No courage, no skill, could effectually compensate for the want of thaws and sinews. Work, war, sports, reveals, all, too, were conducted in the open air. But civilization brought about changes, profoundly influencing the life of the individual. The development of commerce entailed the growth of towns, and then it was found that in the new struggle for existence the battle went rather to the man with the active brain than to the man with a massive frame-work. The active brain became the chief thing to be coveted, rather than physical prowess. The tendency of town populations is to dwindle, and this dwindling is seen markedly in the feeble digestive capacity of town-dwellers. They can not eat the pastry, the pectus, the cakes, which form so large a portion of the diet of their country cousins. If they attempt these articles of food they give themselves the stomach-ache. Consequently they live on such food as they can digest without suffering—bread, and fish, and meat; above all the last—the soft, tasteless flesh of animals, which sits lightly on the stomach and gives an acceptable feeling of satiety, so pleasant to experience. The town-dweller, in his selection of food, is guided by his feelings; he avoids what is repugnant to him. Such selection is natural and intelligible, but it is the cause of danger to all the same. Pulmonary phthisis and Bright's disease seem Dame Nature's means of weeding out degenerate town dwellers. The offspring of urban residents are another race from their cousins who remain in the country. The latter are large-limbed, stalwart, fair-haired, Anglo-Saxons, while their urban cousins are smaller, slighter, darker beings, of an earlier and lowlier ethnic form, and resembling the Celto-Iberian race. And amid this general reversion we can recognize a distinct liver-reversion to the early primitive mode of formation of the bird and reptile. A recognition of these facts must lead to such modifications of the food customs of town-dwellers as are indicated. The spread of teetotalism and vegetarianism tells of a great groping in the right direction in blind obedience to the law of self-preservation. There must also follow some modification of the existing system of education, for it is by the imperfectly-nourished town child that the weight of the burden of education is most acutely felt.—Summary of a paper by Dr. Folgerhill, in Nature.

What Glass Eyes Cost.

The price of glass eyes is becoming cheaper on account of competition, and at the same time the quality is better than hitherto. A common glass eye may be had for $10, but they are not a good imitation and do not last long. A first-class eye costs $20, or even more. The eye will not last over two years, because the material in the hollow of the eye, roughened the glass by chemical action, and this roughness irritates the flesh. If a person could get with glass eyes at wholesale, he could get them for about $2 a piece. But he would have to look over a great many before finding one to match his other eye in size, color, and expression. Glass eyes are all made abroad, principally in Germany and France, no factory having been started here, although there is a great demand for them in this country. A skilled oculist can put a glass eye into the cavity so that the observation is necessary to detect it. Not only are the size and color of the natural eye counterfeited, but even the general expression. The oculist has yet to discover means of giving that sympathetic movement which distinguishes a pair of eyes. There is quite a large number of people with glass eyes, say 1 in 400.—Journaler's Weekly.

THINGS TO THINK OF.

Why Farmers Should Remember That Success, Like Charity, Begins at Home.

"In dairying he who sells butter at common prices, which is made from milk produced from common cows, fed the common way, will never rise to comfortable circumstances, but lead a hard life of toil all his days."

Get out of the deep, worn rut of your old prejudices. Stand up and look the problem of better success square in the face like a man of pluck and brains. Don't whine about monopolies as long as you don't do anything for yourself on your own farm.

Monopolies are bad enough. Corrupt officials are bad enough. High taxes are bad enough. All these outside evils are bad enough, the Lord knows, but to sink down in indifference inside your own line fence, call every improvement that is urged upon you "theory," is a thousand times worse on your fortune. With such a spirit, no wonder monopolies grind you, officials steal from you, and taxes rob you. Think of a farmer trying to get more money by taking milk to a cheese factory from a lot of cows that yield him only three thousand pounds of milk a year, and he not knowing or caring any thing about improving that yield by breeding in better dairy blood.

Think of him going along year in and year out, not knowing how to feed a good cow, even if he has one, so as to bring a little profit for his hard labor.

Think of him making butter that costs him every bit of sixteen to eighteen cents a pound and swapping it for twenty cents a pound for the groceries he needs, getting nothing for his butter.

Think of him selling cream to a creamery and never stopping to think, or read, or study an hour in a month as to the kind of cows he ought to have for that business, or the proper way to care for them.

Think of a man blindly plunging along in these old ruts of farm practice for years and never caring to read what other men are doing who are successful and make money in the dairy business.

Think of a man doing all these things, as thousands are doing and not caring enough for his own profit to invest a bare one hundred cents a year for a paper that is wide awake to his best interests all the time and worth each week a hundred times its cost for a year.

Think of a man doing all these things and then blaming the railroads and the monopolies for his bad fortune, not once dreaming that he himself is mostly to blame because he cares so little for knowledge and the experience of others when it can be had.

Then think how foolish it is to say that a paper that is trying to build up practical success on the farm, and enlarge the power of the farmer to help himself, is not a true friend of the farmer because it is not everlastingly howling about monopolies.

Remember, success is charity, "begins at home."—Prof. W. A. Harvey, in Chicago Herald.

WOMAN'S ECONOMY.

What Can Be Accomplished by Proper Management of Domestic Affairs.

It has often been said that a woman can throw out with a spoon faster than a man can throw in with a shovel. There is, here and there, a woman to whom this adage will apply, but so far as my experience goes it is the exception, and not the rule.

A lady friend, writing to a member of my family a few days ago, said: "I find our marketing and groceries are costing too much. Have made up my mind, with husband's consent, to look after those matters for a time myself." Now, when a woman resolves upon a course like that, the man behind the counter will soon realize, if he has never learned it before, that sixteen ounces make one pound, thirty-two quarts one bushel and one hundred cents one dollar, and she will usually adjust the matter with good effect, and shrewdness as not give offense, only the butcher, the baker, and the gaiter-shoemaker, give a little more attention to the very common words known as, "look out."

The watchfulness of the housewife of this class does not end here—taking this single matter of table supplies. There are a piece of steak, of pork, of chicken, bits of cake, bread and pie, that are carefully saved for the next meal, the next day's lunch, or both. Or she will say: "Take upon your plate just about the amount you eat, and eat up; not take twice the amount needed, so that one-half be left to rot."—Woman's Era.

To sum up the whole matter in this branch of domestic affairs, we bring it under one head—Management. That is the word, and fits the subject as a glove fits the hand, and no one of God's dear, tolling, careworn creatures comprehends it better and understands it more fully than the intelligent, careful housewife.—Cor. Farm and Forester.

COLUMNS OF FIRE.

A Strange Phenomenon Which Is Sometimes Seen in Midcoast by Sailors.

"On deck there!"

The hull came from the foretop of a little full-rigged ship of the old-fashioned New Bedford type that was plowing along the waters of the Atlantic, hurling the bright, phosphorescent waves ahead of the broad bow in a loud and boisterous manner.

"Aye, aye," was the answer, followed by a grunt "what's the matter?" from the sleepy mate.

"Light on the weather bow!" came from the lookout.

"We're a good two thousand miles from land in that direction," muttered the mate, as he swung himself into the rigging.

But when he wiped away the spray that lashed his face with the sea light, and one so strange and unfamiliar that he stood there for a second, baffled by the waves, yet peering at the strange visitor. Then swinging around and dropping from the shrouds to the quarter deck, he put up his big hands to form a trumpet and roared: "Ready about!"

A moment later the ship was trembling in the wind, the blocks hammering the yards viciously, the cordage groaning, the sails snapping like firearms, while the lurching and pitching covered the decks with a gleaming golden spray. The roar and confusion brought the skipper on deck, and in explanation of his order the mate pointed at the strange light that was now astern. The men, too, were looking at it, having made every thing snug, and of all the crew not one had ever seen any thing like it before.

When first seen it looked like a luminous body floating upon the surface, but it had gradually lengthened out, grown more attenuated, as it were, until now it seemed taller than the mainmast of the ship, of a yellowish tint—a most striking object against the black sky.

Some of the men looked at the strange form with grave apprehension. To them it boded no good, perhaps harm; others were not so easily disturbed, but every one on board was at least astonished at the curious apparition that every moment seemed to grow larger and more menacing.

"Keep her away a point," said the captain to the helmsman, and the vessel fell away and slightly increased her speed. "Whatever it is," he continued, "it's coming after us. It looks to me like a waterspout, but I never saw one that was on fire, and that one is if any thing ever was."

The curious object was rapidly gaining on them, and now presented an appalling appearance—a huge column of ghastly light, hundreds of feet high, of a dark, golden, yellowish hue—standing out in strange contrast against the blackness of the midnight darkness of the night. It came so quickly, evidently before the breeze, that the vessel was hauled on the wind, just in time, perhaps, for the strange column went hissing and roaring by not a thousand yards astern, a base where it joined the water surface, ever a second mass of fire, while the upper portion bent gracefully, and was lost in the clouds. In a short time it had entirely disappeared from view. The column was, as the skipper has suspected, a waterspout; a midnight visitor, coursing again and again over the sea, and coming from the east.

Since then several have been seen at one time, veritable pillars of fire, moving rapidly over the surface. It finally occurred to a scientist to examine the water in which these fiery columns were seen, and he found it completely acid, and the form of two miles plants, known to science as pyroclastic pseudonitelines and P-siphonites, whose nucleus, the little spot seen in the center, was vividly luminous.

Here, then, was the secret of the formed and enormous masses of the little light-giver, borne aloft, giving the entire spout a fiery appearance. These spouts differ in color, depending on the intensity of the light of the various animals; some are a dull yellow; others, on moonlight nights, wiled with the forms of two miles plants, known to science as pyroclastic pseudonitelines and P-siphonites, whose nucleus, the little spot seen in the center, was vividly luminous.

MORGAN COUNTY.

Special Correspondence.]

West Liberty, January 20th.
Rev. J. M. Downing preached at the Christian Church Sunday morning and night.

Robert Cummins, of Hazel Green, attended a meeting of the Masonic Lodge at this place Saturday night.

We expected to have the pleasure of announcing a wedding which thought we have come of some time since.
We still stand on our tip toes and hold our breath for an invitation.

H. Clay Turner and W. Chiles Kendall, who left for Frankfort some days ago have not yet returned. Perhaps they are waiting that they may get a ride on the first train that comes to this place.

Died—On January 26th, David Wells, in the eighty eighth year of his age. In his death the county has lost one of its oldest landmarks and a most worthy citizen. He leaves a host of friends to mourn his loss.

"On 'The Wing,' where are you? Is it possible you have forsaken us since the railroad meeting at this place some time ago? Now, Brother Billy, come back and see us and we will guarantee that the train don't run over you.

J. Harvey Evans, (our cousin) the accommodating postmaster at Hazel Green, was registered at the Morgan House last week. He says that either Morgan or Wolfe, and perhaps both, are certain to have a railroad in the near future.

WILD INJUN

Keel, January 20th.

J. B. Cecil has bought a stump pulling machine, and it looks like it would pull anything that is fast at both ends. We suggested to him that in order to get it to pull the most stumps he should advertise it in THE HERALD, which he said he would.

A new district has been made between this place and the Flat Gap school house.
The new school house will be built near where Jackson Cook now lives.

Miss Emma Goodwin has been sick a short time, and her case was not thought dangerous until a few days ago, she is now very low.

One or two of Thomas Walters' sick children, of which we wrote of not long since, are now very low and their recovery is doubtful.

T. E. Johnson's baby has been very sick several days, and at this writing it is not expected to live but a short time.
Joseph Clark has been in town this week making figures for the Keel Mill Co. for timbers to build the new mill.

LATER—Miss Emma Goodwin died Sunday night about 8 o'clock, and her death was sudden and unexpected. She was eighteen years old and was dearly beloved by all who knew her. She was buried Monday evening at 8 o'clock by the side of the new made grave of her sister, who died ten days before. The funeral services were conducted by Rev.
D. B. Combs, and much sympathy was manifested by a large congregation of relatives and friends that had assembled.

Thomas Walters' children and T. E.
Johnson's child are now thought to be some better.

Born—On the 28th, to the wife of Marion Power, a nine-pound boy, name Orlton Lockhart.

Rev. J. M. Downing preached at this place Tuesday night. BLUFF.

If you expect to make Xmas or wedding presents, and desire anything in the jewelry or silverware line, we think we can make it interesting to buy now. We have plain substantial goods, fancy articles and novelties, and will sell for a very small profit, as we can duplicate them at prices no one can duplicate. Otis W. Snider, the manufacturing jeweler, Lexington, Ky. Write for BREATHITT COUNTY.

Special Correspondence.]

Jackson, January 30th.

The Breathitt Circuit Court convened in special session on the 23rd inst. Judge Lilly announced in the language of Cassar, that he had gone into winter quarters, and would either clear the docket or protract the court seven weeks. The Judge knows just how to handle the scales of justice and is doing his work admirably. In the absence of Commonwealth's Attorney Marrs, H. L. Wheeler, of Beattyville, is looking after the interest of the State, who sees that no wrong is placed in either side of the balance to weigh against the infraction of the law perpetrated by evil doers. The local bar, which numbers nine attorneys, is supplemented during court by the following visiting lawyers: J. M. Sebastian, S. P. Hogg and E. E. Hogg, of Booneville, H. L. Wheeler, of Beattyville, Robert Riddle and Will H. Lilly, of Irvine, T. E. Cope, of Frenchburg, Z. T. and W. L. Hurst, of Campton, and T. J. Cornelius, of Richmond. Several penal cases have been disposed of, the jail is well filled and, everything is quiet.

The case of the Commonwealth against Robert Frazier and Brock Finchum, who are charged with the murder of Willie Brewell, and which is the most important case in court, has been set for the eighth day of the term, which is the 31st inst.

A. C. Baker, S. H. Patrick and D. B.
Riddle, of the latter, Judge Riddle, of Irvine, and H. L. Wheeler, of Beatty-ville, have been retained for the prosecution, while the defense is represented by E. C. Strong, R. A. Hurst, J. B. Marcum and C. O. Caldwell, of the Jackson bar, Z. T. Hurst, of Campton, and T. T. Cope, of Frenchburg. Considerable feeling is manifested, and it is safe to say that a very aggravating case will be made out against the parties, and as both sides are represented by the best legal talent in Eastern Kentucky we may expect a forensic struggle that will make "Rome howl."

Dr. Baker, of Lee county, is in town.
He thinks of locating here to practice his profession. He is sorely needed.

Rev. E. P. Mickel and family will start this week for a two months' visit in Georgia.

LETCHER COUNTY.

Special Correspondence.]

Whiteburg, January 16th.

H. C. Frazier is very low with fever.
The select school at this place is progressing finely. New students arrive constantly.

John L. Day, who has been quite low with pneumonia for some time, is now rapidly improving.

The boom for Hon. D. D. Sublett is still growing, and the Democracy of old Letcher is going to be solid for him.

Jose Boggs has a traction engine and portable saw mill stationed at Obadiah Field, near Maudsire. Surely the ward march of progress and the era of development is upon us, even in old Letcher.

Arminia Polly has been in poor health for some time, and her many friends have vainly hoped for her speedy recovery, but the Lord has marked her for his own. She is now lingering in the last stage of pulmonary consumption.

The matrimonial market has struck this county and many hearts have been sacrificed on the hyeminal altar. Among the latest are, Stephen Frazier to Miss Minta Polly, B. F. Kincer to Miss Rebecca Adams. We wish them abundant success through life.

Something rotten with the mail route between here and Hazel Green, eh? Well, I should think so. My paper for December 30th arrived January 11th, and for January 6th on the 14th. The former was twelve days reaching us. I can ride to Hazel Green in less than three days. Besides, I have written four letters to THE HERALD since December 20th and not one of them has reached you.

Every family should take THE HER-ALD, not as charity to the editor, but as an investment. It is doing more to visualize the good and bad people, who have been terribly maligned, and more toward the development of the mountains than any paper published in Eastern Kentucky. THE HERALD only costs one dollar, and yet it is giving hundreds of dollars in the way of free lines for the section in which it is published. We could send you a long list, but a newspaper man here intimates that it takes money to run a newspaper. Well, its no use to talk about it, that article has played out up here long ago. But we are raising the crops of onions this year. Everybody should follow you, your example and help combat the contemptible flings of the metropolitan press.

P. W. E.

Whiteburg, January 23rd.

S. R. Adams is home to spend the winter. He is as jovial as usual, and seems to have enjoyed the work he does while in Lawrence and adjoining counties. His brother, Stephen, comes back very much improved in health and looks hale and beardy.

"Old Sam," from the head of Bad Branch, was in our town last Monday, and quite a number of the boys at court filled themselves full of "sure death," but were restrained from painting the town red.

The matrimonial boom has struck King's Creek and Poor Fork, and not a few have launched upon the conjugal sea. Dr. Holcomb to Mrs. P. A. Caudill being the latest.

Died—On the 20th inst., at the home of her husband, near Magnolia, this county, Mrs. Elizabeth, wife of James F. Mag-gard. Her bereaved ones have our sympathy.

Died—On the 10th inst., at her home for Port Creek, Miss Arminia Polly. She was a kind, sweet girl, and leaves a host of friends to mourn her departure.

J. C. Hogg, who has been quite low with fever for some time, is slightly convalescent.

John A. Craft has been confined to his room for several days, but is now improving.

Wm. J. Horaley has been sick for a few days. P. W. F.

Under exposure to cold winds, rain, bright light or malaria, may bring on inflammation and soreness of the eyes.
Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Eye Salve will subdue the inflammation, and soothe the nerves, and strengthen weak and falling eye sight. 25 cents a box. Sold by G. B. Swango, Hazel Green.

LEE COUNTY.

Special Correspondence.]

Beattyville, January 27.

Died—At the brother's residence in Clark county, of malarial fever, George Lutes. He was a brother to our fellowtownsman Samuel Lutes. His remains were brought to mother's in this county for interment. The relatives have the sympathy of many friends in their affliction.

Miles Dunaway, of this county, died very suddenly Thursday. He was thirty-two years old, and had not a fever, and a step nor spoken a word during his life.

He had to be cared for just the same as an infant.

Messrs. Collins and Gibson, of Madison county, were here on county court day, buying mules and horses. They bought forty or fifty head in this and Owsley counties.

Our County Judge has refused to grant a liquor license to any one hereafter.
This is a good stand he has taken, provided it will stop the sale of whiskey.

Judge Robt. Riddle and Will H. Lilly, of Irvine, passed through our town on Monday last on their way to Jackson to attend the Breathitt circuit court.

Willie McGuire, of this place, and Miss Mary Lyons, of Proctor, were united in matrimony on Friday last. The usual wishes are extended.

A regular "Old fashioned" Northern blizzard struck this place a few nights ago, and she has not entirely recovered from the effects of it.

There was quite an enjoyable dance given at the residence of Mr. and Mrs.
B. W. Twyman, of this place, last Thursday night.

Judge John S. Mahan, of this place, returned from a business trip to Richmond Wednesday of last week.

E. E. Hogg and Green Breeding, of Booneville, were in town on Friday of last week.

S. F. J. Trubee, of Frankfort, was in town Thursday en route to Breathitt on business.

Miss Nannie Bowman, of Hopewell this county, was visiting in town recently.

Messrs. Stone and Grinstead, of Waco, Madison county, are in town this week.

Mrs. J. C. McGuire, of this place, has been on the sick list for several days.

Wm. Word and Thos. McDaniel, of Barbourville, were in town this week.

Our genial friend J. D. Mitchell, of Richmond, was here last Thursday.

Wm. Hickerson, of Breathitt, was here several days during the week.

Wm. Ham, of Talli county, was in Beattyville during the week.

W. B. Bullock, of Booneville, was in our midst one day last week.

J. C. Gouley, who lives near town, is sick with fever.

Last Monday was county court day.

NORTON.

MENFEE COUNTY.

Frenchburg Courier.]

Why do the mountain Senators and Representatives favor the C. & S. A. & R.
R., in preference to the C. K. & W. R.
R., by granting the former and refusing the latter? Why not grant charters to both? The C. K. & W. proposition is equally as fair as is the C. & S. A.'s. The C. K. & W. road would be more benefit than the C. & S. A., and the mountain legislators know it, yet they persist in refusing to grant it. What do they do they mean? Are they serving their constituency, or are they serving certain corporations? Their attitude at present indicates the latter.

The people of Eastern Kentucky welcome a Northern man with outstretched arms, they extend a welcome that can not be taken for save just what it really is. People of Frenchburg and surrounding country cordially welcome the people of the North, South, East and West, and ask them to come among us and assist us in developing our magnificent resources which are unequalled in any country.

Dr. George W. Moore's baby, a bright and sprightly little boy, came very near dying last Friday. The little fellow suffered severe pains for a while, but from gentle care and proper treatment of the case, he soon recovered and is now as spirited as ever. He had a convulsion.

Mr. Pieratt, why have you gone back on your speech at Stanton, and what you told us in the Monitor office—about raising and the mountain resources. We will not forget this. The same to you Mr. James. Selah!
